Total Forced To Flee Homes In Flood Area May Be 100,000

WINNIPEG (CP)—The treacherous Red River, its expected flood crest a day hence, leveled off at Winnipeg today. But just across the river, in St. Boniface, it forced 5,000 more Manitobans from their homes.

Greater Winnipeg's new victims of the muddy torrent, which has covered more than 540 square miles of southern Manitoba, were mostly parcel-carrying women and children, bundled from their homes on two hours' notice. In special train and private cars they traveled in stunned silence—except for wailing babies

NOCTURNAL NOISES

WHILE waiting in a downtown office the other day, my ears Were assailed by what is coming to be one of the com-monest, everyday noises of this modern world—the sound of an electric drill tearing at the paving on one of our downtown streets. And the man in whose office I was waiting declared that the ear-shattering sound was almost driving him to dis-

That particular week, like many other "weeks," is an American institution but its presence on the calendar reminds Canadians, too, how noisy the everyday world is getting to be.

SILENT NIGHT

IT'S getting to be that "silent night" is almost a thing of the past, too. The banging and clatter that accompanies con-struction work makes the night hideous. And when there comes a momentary lull in the symphony of drills and hamractors and excavators, then the blare of countless radios, juke-boxes and automobile horns tooted by roving juve-niles takes up the strain, contributing to the racket of the modern version of the Anvil Churus.

It's true you can get used to anything, even continual noise—something I learned long ago from people who keep their radios blaring from the time they get up in the morning until the time they go to bed at night. That's why any cessation from noise is as bothersome to them as continual noise is

APARTMENT ALARUMS

THAT'S why I chuckled at a friend who recently returned from a stay in the country where she had gone to recuperat from an attack of nerves. Before she went she had complained bitterly of the lack of peace that comes from living in an apartment—the neighbors above or below always hammering or had the radio on when she wanted to sleep, or the children next door cried incessantly when she wanted to be quiet, while those on the other side of her had an alarm clock that ruined her early morning rest.

So it was in search of respite from noise that she went to stay with friends who own a farm in the hinterland of British

DOWN ON THE FARM

WELL, did she find peace? I asked her. Not a bit of it! She What merely exchanged one variety of noise for another, she told me. When I expressed surprise at noise in the country she proceeded to tell me of the horse that kicked up a fuss in the stable at night, caused—as the farmer found on investigating—by a raccoon which wanted to share its bed and board.

She also objected to the roosters which greeted the first hint of dawn with their raucous crowing and kept up their greeting for an unconscionable time. Not did the frogs in a nearby pond do anything to soothe her to sleep.

MECHANICAL DEVICES

AND when I suggested that perhaps the day isn't too far distant when the tractor will entirely replace the horse-and while noisy in the day will, at least, be quiet at night-and when henhouses are universally fitted with artificial sunlight that will fool the cocks into not crowing at dawn, she agreed that life on a farm might then be a bit more peace-than she had found it. In the meantime, human nature being what it is, she had decided that it is easier to bear those noises we know of than fly to others we know not of. And there may be something

A Chance For Each To Help

WEEK-END NEWS OF THE MANItoba flood will have further impressed Canadians with the tragic plight of thousands in the inupdated areas.
Homes destroyed or damaged beyond repair, farms and gardens washed away, families separated in the search for refuge or the fight to block the spreading waters—these form the unhappy aftermath of a river on the rampage.
For many the loss will be critical; health and lives may be at stake. To help such cases a fund, headed by several responsible Winnipeg residents, has been opened in the Manitoba capital. Appeals for support of the Manitoba Flood Relief Fund have been sent to all parts of Canada, and it is hoped that donations may be received from sympathizers in the United States and the United Kingdom as well.

In company with newspapers across the Dominion, the Victoria Daily Times will accept contributions to the cause, and it would be a laudable demonstration of citizenship if a sizeable sum of money could go from this city to aid the stricken people. Mayor Percy George has characteristically led the way in opening a fund to channel the generosity of Victorians. The combined efforts of many Canadian cities, working through the central Manitoba organization, should do much to ameliorate the disastrous effects of the flood and rehabilitate those who have lost their possessions. It will be of particular interest to the people of British Columbia that the Manitoba Fund is modeled along the lines of that which proved so helpful to the Fraser Valley residents who battled the inundation of 1948. Contributions to the Manitoba Flood Relief Fund will be welcomed at the offices of the Victoria Daily Times and forwarded to the proper authorities for emergency use.

In The Court Of Public Opinion

A LITTLE LESS THAN 16 YEARS ago a group of American negroes, headed by Jesse Owens, exploded the myth of white supremacy in the face of Adolf Hitler at the Berlin Olympic Stadium. Currently the Saturday Evening Post is telling the story of Jackle Robinson and the introduction of negroes into the major baseball leagues. Now the American Bowling Congress has thrown aside its exclusive clause which keeps colored people from participating in its events. The explanation for the latest steps is neatly summed up by the general counsel for the A.B.C., Michael J. Dunn. Mr. Dunn, commenting on lawsuits against his organization on grounds of discrimination, noted that the bowling body might win those cases but would lose "in the court of public opinion."

The fight to beat down all color bars has not been won. Even in countries

The fight to beat down all color bars has not been won. Even in countries which consider discrimination illegal, prejudice remains. But the ranks of the prejudiced are thinning. The "court of public opinion" is ruling consistently for those principles of democracy which give this continent its strength. That should mean advance for the negro in the social scale. Not only should it give him the opportunity to enjoy more widely the amenities of life. It should also help to relieve him of any inclination to develop an aggressively defensive reaction. The more he is accepted by people of a different color, the more he should appreciate the general responsibilities that go with that acceptance.

It is popular, nowadays, to cite the instance of Dr. Ralph Bunche, U.N. mediator, to indicate the contribution that is being made to human relations by negro people. Dr. Bunche is an outstanding example. He is by no means alone among his race in ability and willingness to help, not just negroes, but the civilized world to a greater enjoyment of ife.

There are, of course, many instances of discriminatory, if not inhuman, practice against colored peoples in the world. It is encouraging, however, to note the influence which has persuaded the American Bowling Congress to lift the bars. Public opinion, though by no means always right, seems to be reflecting a desirable trend in this instance.

Food Instead Of Bombs

MORE THAN PASSING INTEREST may be roused by the New York Times' suggestion that a technique reportedly being used by Chiang Kai-shek should be explored in some detail. The Generalissimo, according to the story, is now dropping food parcels instead of bombs on certain famine-ridden parts of China. With the parcels go messages saving where the food comes from.

china. With the parcels go messages saying where the food comes from.

Food drops by Chiang's aircraft may do very little to relieve the flunger of multitudes in the republic. Their psychological value, however, should be great. The gesture of friendship and aid for the Chinese people is a constructive way of showing them that kinship is recognized by the Nationalists with residents of the mainland from which Chiang's forces have been driven. This approach has come unfortunately late in the day. How effective it may be in changing the attitude of the population under the rule of Mao can be little more than a matter of speculation. If the food drop explanations are adequate, however, they might serve a purpose beyond that of Chiang. Frequently we have heard reports of Chinese people exposed to attacking Nationalist planes which have been identified by victims as those of American manufacture. Food, instead of bombs and bullets, dropped from such aircraft might create some measure of gratitude for the nation identified with those

The experiment at least puts forward the idea that in some cases butter might be a more powerful weapon than guns in making friends and influencing people.

Nourishing The Non-Material Side

A MONG THE PLEASANT ITEMS IN our newspapers during the last few days have been those reporting the favorable comments of judges on the standards shown by competitors in the musical festival. All criticism, if it is to be fair, cannot be complimentary. Nevertheless much of the opinion voiced during the contests has been of a nature to stir pride in individuals and organizations which have performed.

At a time when people are so occupied with material considerations, it is valuable to have attention drawn to some of our more artistic forms of expression. They represent a development in culture which can frequently be more rewarding than tangible gains obtained by specific tion som the pressure pressure.

work. The delights of song and music are factors of importance to any well-adjusted society. They give pleasure to those who listen and satisfaction to those who are expressing their particular gifts.

This city has produced many excellent artists. A number of them have achieved acclaim in distant centres. Their contribution to the advancement of studies here has been considerable. The musical festival has, of course, brought to attention some of the more accomplished of the present generation of musicians and singers. But what may be more important, it has also revealed a number of artists of substantial talents who give strength and body to worthwhile artistic pursuits.

Russian Veto Is Forcing West To Organize Its Own Community

By BRUCE BIOSSAT, from New York

FIVE years ago the nations of the world were meeting at San Francisco to draft the United Nations charter. Their mood was optimistic: great hopes were felt for this second try in 25 years at establishing lasting world order.

SIGHTS TOO HIGH

But from the moment the charter took effect, if not before, it became clear our sights had been set too high. The big nations, including the United States, hadn't been willing to equip the U.N. with any real power. Everything depended on getting the unanimous consent among the top five. And Russia swiftly proved it wasn't inclined to co-operate with the western countries.

The gulf steadily widened and the differences between East and West became the "cold war." The U.N. simply reflected this conflict. Its usefulness repeatedly was stymled because it wasn't designed to work under such a handicap.

Through all its trials the U.N. nevertheless managed to hold the support of many fervent backers. They saw it as a continuing guarantee that hope for peace was not to be abandoned. They saw it, too, as a forum for the airing of differences that otherwise might smolder and burst into flaming war.

Communism's victory in China was a blow to these supporters. In protest against the U.N.'s failure to admit Red Chinese into U.N. councils in place of established Nationalist representatives, Russia walked out of committee after committee. Since then the U.N. has been practically immobilized.

With western nations apparently ada-

With western nations apparently adamant against admitting China's Communists, there is no early end of the dilemma in sight.

But the need for effective international co-operation was never greater. The Reds' sweep in China, plus Russia's gaining of the atom bomb, has restored the initiative to the Soviet Union in the cold war. The Soviets' mounting boldness is seen in the shooting down of an American plane in the Baltic, in the muscle-flexing around Berlin, in high-handed talk about such hot spots as Trieste and the Turkish Dardanelles.

REGAIN INITIATIVE

Reports from London indicate the western powers are anxious to regain the initiative. Premier George Bidault, looking ahead to the coming conference of western foreign ministers, called for an Atlantic "high council" to unify the free West on military, political and economic matters. Predictions are growing that a tighter linking of Atlantic Pact nations will come out of that meeting.

An Atlantic council is undoubtedly a poor substitute for a workable United Nations. But it's probably better than a U.N. stalled in the Russian mire. In the circumstances we have no choice but to create what order we can in the free world and to oppose Soviet global ambitions with all the physical and moral force we can muster.

A MOST IMPORTANT EVENT

THE FRENCH proposal to Germany, announced Tuesday evening by Mr. Schuman, has taken the world by surprise. But it is a very pleasant surprise. The French government has proposed to the German nation much more than concessions on this and that. The French have proposed that they take the first but also by all odds the most important step towards a final liquidation of the Franco-German conflict in Europe.

The essence of the proposal is that the big industries of Western Europe, fundamentally coal and steel, which are in Germany, in France, in the Saar, in Luxembourg and Belgium, shall all be brought under the same—a commonsystem of industrial law and regulation. The operating conditions, the trading rights and arrangements, the labor standards are to be made approximately equal despite the fact that the industrial region Js under four—or if one counts the Saar, five—different political governments.

THE French government has thus made a fundamental change in its attitude towards Germany. In place of dismemberment and prolonged inequality M. Bidault and M. Schuman are offering Germany full equality and a full Franco-German partnership in European affairs. This is the boldest, the wisest, the most far-reaching and constructive act of statesmanship since the end of the war. Chancellor Adenauer was quick to see the immense significance of the French proposal. If that proposal can be consummated, then in the Franco-German partnership there will come into existence the nucleus of a European power—of that "third force" which is so indispensable to the stabilization of Europe and to peace in the world.

No project of this magnitude can be carried through without a struggle against vested interests of many kinds—in every country immediately concerned and in other countries as well. There ought to be no hesitation, it seems to me, on the part of the American government in giving the proposal its full and active support in Bonn, in Brussels, in London and elsewhere. For this is a bus which we simply cannot afford to miss.

we simply cannot afford to miss.

The terms of the partnership will have to be worked out by the French and the Germans. America's first role in the business is to do what it can to see that there is no interference from the outside. Then it is the U.S.A.'s right as an occupying power and its interest in the broadest sense to encourage the Germans and the French to believe that the risks will be less and the prizes will be greater if they are bold and magnanimous. For France and for Germany, after the terrible war and in the face of a war that would be so much more terrible, there is no safety now except in audacity.

THE French proposal is bold and it is magnanimous. Only five years have passed since the end of the cruelest and most degrading of all the Franco-German wars. It is a bold and magnanimous act on the part of the French government, which is among the victors, to propose to its hereditary enemy, which is defeated, that they enter into a full and equal, and indeed an intimate, partnership in European affairs.

In taking the decision to make the proposal the French government must have realized that this meant the revival of the political and economic influence of Germany in Europe. In any such equal industrial regime as the French are offering the Germans are bound by their technological and administrative gifts to play a leading part.

MOREOVER, the French cannot have had the illusion—which is entertained by many in Washington and in London—that this resurgent and powerful Germany can be "enmeshed" or "integrated" into being a useful, reliable secondary ally of Britain and of the United States. In a Franco-German partnership the Germans will acquire such independent power that they can have a foreign policy of their own.

WHAT will that policy be? Some among us hope and believe that the Germans, having achieved full equality with the West, will therefore turn their backs on the East. I believe this to be a miscalculation. The Germans, living, as they do in the middle and not on the western fringe of Europe, will have as they have always had throughout their history—an Eastern as well as a Western policy. My own belief is that a Franco-German understanding would on the part of the Germans be followed by something like—at the least—a Bismarkian policy of "reinsurance" with the East. But within the framework of the Bidault Schuman policy it would be possible, indeed necessary, for France to participate as an equal and fully informed partner in any German negotiations with the East.

ONE of the prime facts of European life, which is not always fully appreciated in London and in Washington, is that Germany must have relations to the East. She can wage war to the East. She can make deals with the East. But what is impossible for Germany is to have no relations with the East.

have no relations with the East.

We can get along without relations with Eastern Europe and with Russia. Britain can get along. But not Germany. And any conception of European and Germany policy which assumes the contrary is sure to lead to disappointment and to failure.

TALENTED

I would like through you paper to congratulate that talented young musician, Charles Palmer, who so aptly brought the Fairfield Choir to their success at the festival.

FAIRFIELD RESIDENT.

BEER PARLORS

May I have some of your valuable space in which to comment upon the interesting letter analyzing beer parlors and contributed by Ray F. Whellams of our city? I would also warmly compliment Mr. Whellams upon his reasoning and the moderation of his views.

First, the writer overlooks the fact that beer is now sold in large quantities just outside our city limits and in numerous clubs throughout Victoria. And the liquor store will deliver beer, by the case, upon telephoned request anywhere in Victoria. So the hotels are not asking any great departure from routine in the plebiscite of May 30. Rather, they ask for a fair deal in this matter. Why should they be discriminated against in the beer business. Certainly a beer parlor may sell beer and nothing else. That is a regulation imposed by authority beyond the jurisdiction of hotel owners.

Yes, the hotel owners feel that in opening their licensed premises they would make some profit, but first they must expend monies which would be a long time returning to them. They feel that they are entitled to the same opportunities as clubs, and believe that they can supervise beer drinking better than any of those establishments. The purpose is to "make profit," but is that not the purpose of any business organization and without profit why should they operate at all, any more than the grocery store or the butcher?

Most commodities are "habit forming" and certainly no rational citizen should use anything to the point where he or she "commits lirational acts." Can we not trust our fellow citizens to act in decency or must they be put under iron restraint at the will of would-be "reformers" who will dictate what they will or will not do? This experiment has failed lamentably wherever tried, as anybody with any background of experience will readily admit. Licenses would be granted sparingly and only to those hotels which would meet the rigid requirements imposed by the proper authorities. Mr. Whellams may count upon that fact with every confidence.

Certainly the "liquor interests" know that more outlets mean a larger consumption of beer as more outlets mean the same thing in any commodity. Those persons who "don't know when to stop" are a problem in any community and would have to be controlled. The hotel owners are well aware of that.

All the hotel owners ask is a fair judgment. Beer is sold now in and around Victoria in large quantities—and we are not noted for our criminal tendencies in this fair city. Surely the hotel owners, with their heavy investment and responsibility, can be trusted to handle this matter as well as the ordinary club operator. Unfortunately, the traffic in liquors or beer cannot be completely eliminated, but if we must have it let us put it in the care of responsible men and women who are as much interested in our city as the unreasonable critic who

too often has no "stake" in our community beyond some hazy oratory.

CONTROVERSY

At the present time a controversy over the sale of beer by the glass exists in Victoria. A great many adults appear to fear that the legalization of this issue would lower the morals of our youth and tend to an increase in juvenile delinquency. Perhaps these people who appear so frightened have been too hasty with their opinions.

As was so completely shown by the prohibition era of our southern neighbor, the taking away of the right to drink with moderation resulted in a flourishing period of crime. Because of this prank of human nature—wanting that which is forbidden—in Victoria, where it is illegal to consume liquor in a public place, there are also numerous infractions of the law. These soon lead to the consumption of liquor in much greater amounts than if alcohol was obtainable in small amounts amid respectable surroundings.

Today's youth is constantly endeavoring to find outlets for its vase storehouse of energy through teen-age organizations, dances, and sports events. With the exception of the local theatres, Victoria has few respectable places where your teen-age son or daughter may enjoy a respectable evening. Because you do not have to be an experienced sleuth to observe members of the adult population of the city breaking the law, teeners soon use similar methods for teeners soon use similar methods for their own entertainment.

While it may be true that no minor may make a legal purchase of alcohol in BC, it is much too easy to find some unconscientious adult who will make the purchase for him. After paying through the nose in this manner, the teen ager is not going to consume the contents of the bottle moderately: he's going to have it all.

Respectable means for adults to consume liquor in moderation are necessary in order that a better example may be set for our youth. Residents must not, however, expect the change to be noticeable overnight. The best legislation is only successful after it has withstood the vintage of time.

The alcohol education program introduced by the provincial government will spread the scientific truths of our alcohol problem. With today's teen-agers being able to draw valid conclusions when presented with scientific data, adults should not worry too much about the morals of our youth. The present alcohol problem consists not of alcohol itself—but of the proper use of it in regards to its consumption. Europeans know now how to drink—we do not. It is this that the present education program will right immediately, not the abolition of alcohol.

A factor which will increase juvenile delinquency will be a continued lack of proper recreational facilities. This means not only physical recreation—it means

Above all, the point to be remembered is that conditions as they stand foday are far more detrimental to youthful morals than legal and respectable drinking would be.

SUCCESS OF THE Conservatives in Britain's town and city council elections, at the expense of the Labor Party, represents a continuation of the country's political swing back towards the "right."

political swing back towards the "right."
That doesn't mean the country is discarding socialism in toto and is returning to the extreme Toryism of old, Rather it represents a readjustment in the social and economic levelling off process which is remaking Britain both politically and socially.

APTLY DESCRIBED

A British friend of mine aptly described the position in the remark that "the pendulum continues to swing."

"the pendulum continues to swing."

The political pendulum took a violent swing to the "left" in 1945 when the Socialists ousted the Conservatives, headed by Prime Minister Winston Churchill. It wasn't that the country had "gone Socialist," but that it was weary from the austerities of war and felt the urge for a change.

Then in last February's general election the pendulum took such a violent swing back to the "right" that the Socialist government was all but thrown out of power. In the current town and city council elections the pendulum has continued its rightward course a bit further.

Pursuing our figure of speech, it is a characteristic of the pendulum that it oscilates and that each oscilation carries it a shorter distance until it finally comes to a stop—in dead centre. That, I believe, accurately represents what is going on in Britain politically and, as a consequence, socially.

REACHED LIMIT

It is a fair guess the pendulum has reached the limit of its swing.

reached the limit of its swing.

And what of the reigning Socialist government? Here again I think we can well apply the figure of the pendulum. The Labor Party itself has reached a period of indecision.

period of indecision.

The government has carried its program of nationalization and other door trines far enough so that it is getting a strong reaction of displeasure from a powerful section of the voters. That accounts for the recent setbacks in the elections.

WASTING TIME

C. V. Wedgwood in BBC London Letter

"These are two things I have learned: that knowledge is a means to an end, not an end in itself. That time, like money, must not be hoarded and calculated and spent only according to schedule. We must learn when to be extravagant, when to be careless with time, when the best way of spending the minutes is simply to waste some of them. In the end that is the surest way of getting the fullest return on the little store of time that we have."

RUNNING OUT OF CREAM

It doesn't take long in any country, even in naturally rich ones like Australia and New Zealand, to skim the cream of the millionaires. Unfortunately for those with a taste for ple-in-the-sky, there are never enough of these sugar daddies to keep a government permanently flush in funds. Sooher or later and usually sooner, there comes a time when the costs must come out of permanent revenue and that means higher taxes for everyholds.

When they discovered that little lesson the people of Australia and New Zealand lost their enthusiasm for the welfare state, and the recent election results in Great Britain would indicate that they are losing some of their socialistic enthusiasm, too.

Tiremen Capture Weird Ball Game

Douglas Tire and B.C. Forest Products at Central Park Sunday is purely coincidental.

The nine-inning game took over two hours to complete with the Tiremen outlasting the Millmen to chalk up a 15 to 9 victory

The game was over in the first | most batted around twice, sending 17 batters to the plate before being retired, to run up a total of 11 runs on only four hits.

and walked the later than the faced. Tiremen were lucky to get by with only three runs being scored.

It was a 15 to 9 ball game and the runs going it appeared.

but the millmen put on a show of their own, with the help of erratic pitching from the Doug-las-Tire hurlers in the fourth inning, and cut the deficit in half with six runs.

From there on in the two re-lief pitchers, Ray Hough for Forest Products and Joe Bryant for Jim Lackie's team came up with some good hurling, and the good ball. But the damage was done, and the big lead was too B.C. Forest Products 9 5

Toad Garnet led off the big inning for Douglas Tire and worked young Barry Jackson, the millmen's starting hurler, for a base on balls. Fiori Goe gan followed Garnet and hit a pop fly behind third base. No one could quite reach the ball and it fell in for a hit.

RUNS GALORE

Bill Reynolds laid down a perect bunt in front of the plate that was booted by Jackson and all runners were safe. Vic Dale came up and lashed out a longfly to left, and Garnet came in

Frank Kilsaw walked and the ags were loaded again. Chick Newman forced Goegan at the plate, and Ab Ellis walked to push in Reynolds. Another "Annie Oakley" to Hap Milliken by Jackson was his downfall, and At Rifle Meet he gave way in favor of Earl King. Ken Gunter greeted him 100, Gerry Valleau of the Fifth with a single through the middle, 75th Regiment Rifle Association and went to second when no one was high scorer in the weekly covered up on the throw from

Five more runs came in before King could get the third man out, with the big blow being a triple by Goegan to his off-field. BIG INNING

Forest Products fourth inning was a repeat of Tiremen's first. Four singles and five walks were good enough for six runs, but

King was chased to the showers in the bottom of the fourth after he had issued three walks and a double by Dale that boosted the score to 15 to 6. Gunter went out under fire in the sixth, and Bryant came on

IT'S MY VIEW

You can't judge a horse by the color of its eyes nor can you judge the Shamrocks by their first start in the Intercity acrosse League. But it's a fact that the team's opening league engagement against the Salmonbellies caught most everyone, with the possible exception of coach Arnold Ferguson, by complete surprise.

Ferguson, who has played in the league long enough to know about such things, has maintained from the start that a Victoria club should be able to hold its own in intercity competition and off the performance of the club in that first game he apparently knew whereof he spoke.

The Shamrocks Were Ready

The most surprising aspect of the Shamrocks' victory was the ease with which it was accomplished. Trainers Deans Blackstock and Dusty Mair had the boys in near perfect physical condition for the opener, while Ferguson had the club in the correct mental frame of mind. The fishmen, who brought with them the reputation of being able to run almost any team into the ground, were themselves outsped by the

However, all's no silver that glistens and Ferguson will be the first to admit that things won't be as rosy from now on. In Salmonbellies, the Shamrocks met what probably is the lightest club in the league and a team that prefers to open up the game. Such will not be the ease when the Dominio champion Burrards invade the locals' sanctum on Wednesday night or when Ferguson's old club, New Westminster Adanacs, tangle with the locals. Both are hard-checking clubs.

New Rules Aid Leading Club

A good comparison between six xand seven-man lacrosse can be obtained tonight when the local senior B league opens at the Arena with all four teams in action. The local teams will abide by the seven-man rules as opposed to the six-man style being used in the intercity circuit. The six-man variety certainly tends to provide for higher-scoring games and appears to favor a leading team, especially in the latter stages

With less men on the floor it stands to reason that it is much easier to rag a ball when protecting a lead than under the seven-man rules. A losing team when attempting to gain possession of the ball can be forced into many defensive errors by an alert opponent, a point which the Shamrocks were quick to take advantage of against the Salmonbellies.

What About The Memorial Arena?

According to press reports from the mainland, league officials now are wondering if they did right by accepting the Shamrocks into the league. Not because the Shamrocks won their first game but because of the Memorial Arena. Three of the Shamrocks' home dates in August have had to be changed because of previous commitments in the arena and it is still possible that the arena floor may be lost to the club for a time in June if arena consultant C. T. Hamilton decrees it after inspecting the cement floor surface.

It is claimed this move would mean rescheduling some games and would cause considerable financial loss to the Admittedly amazed at the Shamrocks, one Vancouver scribe who took in the opening game here said, when asked how the Shamrocks looked in comparison to the Vancouver clubs: "They're a little green yet, but they won't be last in the league." He was probably thinking about our hockey club and the present position of the baseball team.

This is Your Invitation

Many thousands of Victoria citizens petitioned the government to hold the plebiscite, which is to be held on May 30th. Amongst these citizens will be your neighborsyour friends-or maybe members of your own family.

The plebiscite reads:

Do you approve of the sale of beer by the glass in licensed premises without a bar, under government control and regulation?

One thing to remember is that beer by the bottle is already available, in the home, in the hotel room, in parked cars and by the glass in the areas just outside Victoria city limits. The purpose of the plebiscite is to correct some of the objections and inconveniences which accompany the present system of distribution and sale.

Those thousands who signed the petition take the view that if they can purchase a glass of beer in licensed premises, then the necessity of purchasing beer by the case, at increased cost, and carting it home no longer exists. This would reduce the consumption of beer in the home and more or less confine it to licensed premises.

From the hotel man's point-of-view, the licensed premises would decrease the consumption of beer in hotel rooms, where it is uncontrollable and bring it into the open, where it is controllable.

From the point of view of Victoria citizens as a whole, here are a few of the things that the purchase of beer on licensed premises in a few Victoria hotels, would do for

L. It would keep the money, now going to areas outside the city limits, within the city, making for greater prosperity to all.

- 2. It would give to each Victoria citizen the right to enjoy a refresher and rest, whensoever it pleases him, which is his inalienable right.
- 3. It would spread abroad the gospel that Victoria is a live and "up and going" centre, with broad-minded citizens, unprejudiced in matters of normal human
- 4. It would be an added service to hotel guests, particularly tourists, and could conceivably be the means of prolonging their stay in the city-which means much to those Victoria business men who cater to the tourist trade.
- 5. It would end the controversy and attendant bitterness which exists in se Victoria city for years to come, because it would prove to them that freedom of personal desire always ends controversy.

If Victoria is to become a great and prosperous attractive centre in keeping with the beauty of her natural resources and environment, then the powers of bigotry and prejudice must be overcome, before fullness of her maturity can plans when she became nursery governess to Baba, small daughter of Syrie and Jon Amberley, who live with Jon's brother Piers in North Africa. But soon Clemency is engaged to Piers. Clemency feels the hatred of Syrie, who despises Jon and is in Jove with Piers herself. Jon tells Clemency that before his marriage, Syrie and Piers were engaged and Piers invited them to live this home so he and Syrie could be together. Clemency goes to Piers for explanations and finds Piers and Syriesgethes, and Syrie scentes the impression that Jon's words were true. Clemency has not given Piers a chance to explain because Babs has become ill, apparently with pneumenia. Piers has gone to Biskra to fetch a doctor.

INSTALLMENT 31

As Syrie reached the door, she looked back. Clemency was bending over Baba, who clutched hold of her with one small, feverheated hand. The sight of her child clinging to the girl stirred an illogical resentment to life.

Take Us To The Seashore We've Got Our Beach Bags! By PENNY SAVER

Watching a duck step gingerly onto a sand bar, mid stream, the other morning, to have his early morning scrub-down, and later seeing a few canoes carrying holiday-minded occupants smoothly down the Gorge, I thought it was just about time I got around to taking stock of our seashore equipment. Last year's picnic bag has been biding its time, awaiting for the moment when we'd finally break the camel's back by stuffing everything but Fido into the thing.

With a pocket full of dreams on one side of my jacket, and a with a pocket full of dreams on one side of my jacket, and a with a char I started out to track down beachhandful of sheckles in the other, I started out to track down beachware. Like it or not, here's what I found.

A water-proof red plastic beach bag to hold towels, bathing suits and anything else you want to throw in, for $2.59. This bag is particularly useful in that with bathing suit in the deep plastic side pocket, gadgets won't tumble out. To top it off the bag comes complete with shoulder strap.

A MOTHER
Answer: I think you are exactly right and that your husband is all wrong, and that you take the only possible means of retaining your children's respect when you force them to accept their share of responsibility in family life. There is no other crime that a mother can commit against her children that is so cruel as for her to spoil them. It utterly unfits them for life, for she can't softpad existence for them. She can't do their work for them and coddle and pamper them when they leave home.

By ALAN DONNELLEY

Every shipload of newcomers split postwar Europe has brought Canada something more than just new citizens. The ships have brought talent — skills and abilities which have added immeasrably to the arts in Canada.

This windfall of Old World culture has been most evident in the field of music, and it's relected to a great extent in Cana dian broadcasting.

The Canadian Broadcasting Corporation seems to have absorbed much of this talent probably because of its emphasis on classical music, but also because immigrants, coming from countries where national radio, national opera and national orchestras are taken for granted, naturally turn to Canada's national radio for a chance to show their

LENGTHY TASK

Walter Kaufmann, 42-year-old Czech who came to Canada in 1947, is a prime example of what Canada has been getting in composers, singers, instrumentalists and teachers.

Mr. Kaufmann took a long me to get to Canada after leav ing Germany, where he directed an opera company. From 1934 to 1946 he was music director of the All-India Radio and was nusic director for the J. Arthur Rank film organization in Britain before coming to the Halifax Conservatory in 1947. In 1948 he went west to reorganize the Winnipeg Symphony orchestra and has been there since.

His contribution to Canada's a noted recital pianist; he has the Winnipeg Symphony into a top musical organization; itions have made news to explore the Bible for himself.

He went to the Technical Colballet festival in Toronto, a con--the music for the ballet lege classes, and in five months certo for piano and orchestra whose premiere was broadcast

JERUSALEM'

The newcomers include Blake's prophetic "Jerusalem," music by Sir Hubert Parry, which is regarded in Britain as a sort of second National Anthem.

Another addition is Sir Cecil Spring Rice's "I Vow to Thee My Country," written Jan. 12, 1918, Sir Cecil's last day as British ambassador in Washington.

The revisers also have let in some noted Weish tunes: "All Through the Night," "Hyfrydol," "Cwm Dhondda," and "Llanfair." English words of "Guide Me, O Thou Great Redeemer" are pro-vided for "Cwm Rhondda," composed in 1907 by John Hughes.

Pete's Pessimistic Outlook Saves Contract For Today

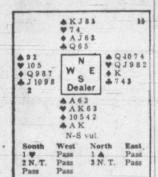

"Open an umbrella," suggested one of his opponents. "The roof one of his opponents. "The roof might start to leak while you're playing it."

Pete ignored the advice and studied the hand intently. He was looking for a way to make was looking for a way to make his contract against even the worst breaks. Pete is the sort of player who enjoys giving up unnecessary tricks to make sure of his contract.

The opening lead had been a club and Pete, the declarer, had seen at a glance that he could win three club tricks, one diamond, two hearts, and two spades. He needed one other trick to make his game contract.

It was clear that no extra tricks could be developed in clubs. The same was true of clubs. hearts, since with even the most favorable break, one opponent was bound to have at least four

After some thought, Pete decided that an attempt to win the extra trick in spades might fail. However, the right line of play would produce the ninth trick in diamonds, no matter how that suit was divided.

SIMPLE METHOD

His method was very simple. At the second trick he led a low diamond to dummy's ace! As it happened, East's king fell on this trick. It was therefore easy to drive out West's queen with dummy's jack. South's own 10 onds then provided the of diam ninth trick.

It is interesting to note that South was sure to make his ninth trick by playing the ace of dia-monds. If East had not been obliged to drop the king for the queen) a small diamond would have been returned from the dummy at trick three.

If it happened that East held both the king and the queen, he would be forced to play one of them at once to prevent South's 10 from winning a trick. This would allow South to keep the 10 in his own hand and the jack in dummy, after which it wou be easy to knock out the remaining top diamonds.

If East failed to follow suit on the second round of diamonds, South could play his 10 to force out one of West's honors. Then he could lead toward dummy's jack later on.
